DARING TO SWITCH

Switching from one career to another is a bold and daring move, but one that Brazilian Alexandra de Paiva has made with conviction. Just half-way through her chemical engineering degree, she realised she was more interested in the financial side of the business rather than the technical side. Two years after finishing her degree, she decided to branch out into finance and complete an MBA.

“After relocating to Australia to work with BHP, I learned the importance of CPA (Certified Practising Accountants) in the Australian workplace and decided to start the journey to become one,” she says. “It started with a Master of Accounting at Curtin for graduates in another discipline.”

But the journey was not easy, as she grappled with the dilemma of changing careers and starting anew so far away from her home in Brazil. She initially chose to study online so she could hold down her job with BHP at the same time.

“It was a challenge to study and work full-time and even more challenging to study something I was not familiar with. I nearly gave up during the second semester,” she recalls. “It required strong commitment over the weekends, sacrificing my social life to invest in my qualification, but the course was fundamental to enabling me to change career.”

The practical nature of the degree gave de Paiva the ability to apply knowledge from the classroom to her job. After graduating in 2007, she proceeded to CPA qualification, a move that enabled her to take on a number of financial roles in resources companies, including Senior Business Analyst at Paladin Energy Ltd and Manager of Commercial Supply Chain and Administration at Mirabela Nickel Ltd.

She was involved in spearheading cost analysis and management accounting on-site in Brazil, Malawi and at Head Office in Perth, and improving internal reporting, performance management, savings and integrating forecasting and budgeting processes. Going from strength to strength, de Paiva won a company award for assisting technicians in managing to forecast maintenance costs.

De Paiva currently works as a Senior Finance Manager/Controller at Norsk Hydro where she develops new business cases and engages with multiple stakeholders – procurement, legal, operations and finance – to solve complex problems. But while she has found her true calling, her continual thirst for learning is still driving her to greater heights.

“Continuous learning is the key to keeping abreast of what is happening in the professional world outside our companies,” she says. “We need to learn more about different areas of the company to become even better in what we do.”

Mange leger ønsker ikke lederjobb – ofte er det slik at de føler seg presset inn i dem (4).. Manglende opplæring og bakgrunnskunnskap medvirker til dette Tidlig satsing på potensielle helseledere – allerede som medisinstudenter – vil sannsynligvis gi flere gode ledere på lang sikt.. Dessverre er den formelle undervisningen i ledelse ved profesjonsstudiene i medisin i Norge marginal, og formelle masterkurs er både kostbare og innebærer krav om erfaring.
